(Comment: In the 1939 Registers it records that {V14} was Born on the 6th July 1908. It is concluded that the year 1908 is incorrect as (1) his parents were not married until Q1 in 1912, (2) he does not appear in the 1911 Census of England and (3) his Birth was registered Q3 in 1912. It is presumed that his Birth date in the 1939 Registers was incorrectly stated to make his age appear closer to that of his Wife Lily Rose Heathman. Also in his WWII Armed Forces service record his date of Birth is recorded as 5th July 1908. It should be noted that as he was Born in 1912, he would have only been 17 years old when his Daughter {V99} Dorothy was Born. In his Death record it states that he was Born on the 6th July 1913.)

Obituaries

The obituary of {V60} Robert J Audley published in the Guardian Newspaper on the 27th September 2020.

My former colleague Robert (Bob) Audley, who has died aged 91, was a leading psychologist at University College London (UCL) for more than 30 years and a major contributor to mathematical psychology in the 1950s and 60s. His research involved creating models to explain how people make choices. The work looked at how people take a sequence of samples of their experience until they have sufficient evidence on which to base a decision or response a major issue for researchers. Bob's models produced precise predictions that could be tested.

Bob was born in East Dulwich, South London, to Walter Audley, a Railway Worker, and his Wife, Agnes (nee Baker). He was brought up in Streatham. The Second World War began just as he was starting at Battersea Grammar school: the school was evacuated first to Worthing, West Sussex, and then to Hertford. After national service, he took a degree at UCL, graduating in psychology in 1952. Following a Fulbright scholarship at Washington State University, he returned to UCL to complete a PhD on mathematical learning theory.

He became a lecturer at UCL in 1957, head of the psychology in 1979, Dean of Science in 1985, Vice-Provost in 1988, and Fellow of UCL in 1989. He served as President of the British Psychological Society, the professional body for the discipline, between 1969 and 1970 and as President of the Experimental Psychology Society, a learned society, between 1962 and 1964.

In the 70's Bob studied ways to improve map legibility, producing a set of recommendations for map designers. For example, he discovered that when place names are difficult to pronounce, it helps to display them in capital letters.

In the 90s, Bob instigated a programme of work on medical accidents, identifying reasons for medical mistakes, the consequences of them for patients and staff, and on developing methods for increasing patient safety.

As computers came into use, modern psychologists were able to use stimulus sampling approaches of the sort that Bob developed in the 1950s in much more complex tasks. His research on mathematical psychology has been cited much more frequently in the last quarter century than in the previous one.

Retiring in 1994, he lived in Keats Grove, Hampstead, north London, and remained engaged in local intellectual, political and literary life. As a person, he was warm-hearted, urbane and quirkily witty.

He is survived by Vera Elyashiv, his second wife, whom he married in 1990; his son, Mathew, from his first marriage, to Patricia Bannister, which ended in divorce; and his stepson, Jonathan, from his second marriage.

1931 Census of England

The 1931 Census of England was taken 26th April 1931 but was destroyed during WWII

1939 Registers of England

The 1939 Registers were created as the WW11 National Registration on the 29th September 1939

The 1939 Registers were created in 1939 for the issue of registration documents and ration books shortly after the commencement of World War 2. As they were produced after the start of the war they do not include people who were member of; conscripted into and volunteered for the Armed Services. Additionally After World War 2 these registers were used as the registration of people into the newly formed National Health Service.

This document has been produced for display on www.audleyfamilyhistory.com & www.audley.one-name.net Please feel free to distribute this document to others but please give credit to the website. This document should not be used for commercial gain

These registers were 'updated' by the National Health Service until 1991 when the National Health Service Registration was computerised. The updates made under the National Health Service typically include; changes of surname by Marriage, corrections to Christian names (for example changing initials to full names) and recording the Deaths of individuals listed in the registers. No changes of address are recorded are the Births of new individuals are not recorded.

The records of individuals are either open or closed. Open records can be viewed by the public and Closed records cannot be viewed by the public. Records are open if one of the following conditions applies:

- * The record is open if the person was born more than 100 years ago. This is the 100 year rule and means that progressively more records will be opened each year until they all become open in 2040.
- * The record is open if the person is deceased and the person's Death is recorded in the registers. In theory this means that the record for anyone listed in the registers and Died before 1991 should be open. However not all deaths before 1991 were recorded in the registers, and people who were in the Armed Forces in 1939 are not listed in the registers.

Records that are not open are closed. However members of the public can make requests to the National Archive at Kew to open closed records. To do this they must be able to supply a copy of a Death Certificate and the National Archives must be able to relate this Death Certificate to a particular individual in the 1939 Registers. For example the Death Certificate has the address where the individual died and the 1939 Registers have the address where the individual was living in 1939 so not all requests may be successful
