

The body of Robert Audley, who lost his life last spring by the capsizing of a fish boat off Point au Sauble, was discovered in the lake at Ludington, on the 7th. The flesh was entirely gone, and the only means of identifying the body was by the boot on one foot, the other being brought from home to make the comparison.