

Two Ladies Hurt.

A phaeton in which were the wife and daughter of Charles Audley, the livery stable proprietor, owing to an unmanageable horse collided with a team on Lafayette street. Mrs. Audley was thrown out and severely injured, but the daughter, who held to the reins with great courage, was pulled over the splash-board. She was stunned, and after being somewhat revived was taken home in a hack.

---